Last week I watched a new documentary about World War II. The main subjects of the film are Nazi's and Soviet's technologies, secret experiments and their dictators like Stalin and Hitler etc. Also, one of the subjects of this documentary are the main battles and famous generals.

I think, that purpose of that film is to show people how it was to live in nineteen forty's and what is the real war. It's very important to know about it, because our grand-fathers and grandmothers went through this terrible war. Lots of people died for their countries, and we must remember them and remember why they gave their lives.

To my mind this film absolutely fully reached its purpose. All of the scenes are filmed very interesting and truly. Moreover, all of the facts in this film are true. This documentary is a really good film. It's breathtaking from its beginning to its end.

I would recommend this film to other people. It's absolutely not a silly waste of time as other films. This documentary can teach you and give you a lot of useful knowledge. Also it's like a little "brainstorm". You think and make decisions about all of the themes in this film minute by minute. I recommend this film to our readers.
